

More about the Instructors...

Melvin Burgette

The piano instructor is a graduate of Rutgers University Mason Gross School of the Arts. He has been teaching privately for more than 20 years. Melvin Burgette has recorded, written, and co-labored with other musicians and artists in the industry. Since he specializes in working with beginners and younger children, Melvin patiently incorporate music techniques that are solid, easy to grasp, and most of all...FUN! He offers a learning environment that nourishes the talent's of his students from ages 4 and up. His teaching style is geared to accommodate the various learning styles of his students and to encourage them to enjoy music. Mr. Burgette has helped many students of all ages not only accomplish their goals of how to play piano, but he has given them confidence to reach their other personal goals too.

Melvin is the COO of STR8 WAY MUSIC SERVICES, LLC. He ensures that each student has a lesson plan unique to their learning style, skill, and ability. Because of the ear that he has developed through playing music, he is able to use those skills when running sound systems for various engagements. In addition to his professional achievements, he provides home instruction to his own school age children, and helps to design their course curriculum.

Noa Brown-Burgette

The percussion instructor is a graduate of Katherine Gibbs School of Business. She has initiated music programs and activities in the public school sector. Additionally, she has attended the New Jersey School-Age Care Coalition training as one of the many conferences and trainings geared towards interacting with children. Ms. Brown-Burgette has worked with youth of all ages. Not only is her approach fun-filled, but it is age appropriate. She is a self-taught musician that has studied under strong musical influences. In addition to playing percussion, she plays the drums, bass guitar, offers beginner piano lessons to youth ages 4-10, and provides technical consultation for developing and running a solid sound system. Her teaching style is a solid "hands-on" approach that can be appreciated by her students. She has recorded, written, and consulted on other musical projects. She is definitely capable of leading her students in the path of greatness.

Noa is the founder and CEO of STR8 WAY MUSIC SERVICES, LLC. She continues to implement classes, workshops and summer programs that maximize the full potential of each participant. In addition to her professional achievements, she provides home instruction to her own school age children, and hopes to open a home instruction co-op in the very near future.
